LATEST EASTERN NEWS.

New York, March 15.—It is rumored here that supplementary legislation will modify or amend the tax on spirits now on hand, but will increase duties to 50 cents. The new duty on imported wines is to be 50 cents; spirits turpentine, $1 25 per gallon. The World's special Washington dispatch says: Commissioner Lewis, of the Internal Revenue, recommends a tax of 40 cents on petroleum, one dollar on distilled spirits, and 50 cents on tobacco.

Guano, March 15.—An officer of Porter's fleet furnishes the following particulars of the expedition up the Wachita: The expedition consisted of six gunboats. There were no signs of the enemy until approaching Trinity, which was fortified. Preparation for an attack were immediately made. The flagship Fort Hindman advanced, and the rebels supposing her a transport, opened a heavy fire on her, which she bore bravely for a time, but finally concluded to retire from the contest. Loss, 2 killed and 8 wounded. The Admiral then transferred his flag to the gunboat Wachita. Her powerful armament soon silenced the enemy's guns and finally drove them from the town, when the force landed. A large amount of property was destroyed. The rebel works were very strong. The fleet then went to Harrisonburg, at the junction of the Wachita and Texas, where little difficulty was experienced in driving the enemy from their batteries. The town was then burned.

Washington, March 15.—In the House, Mr. McMillan, from the Committee of Ways and Means, reported a bill establishing an Assay Office in Nevada Territory, also one at Portland, Oregon. Referred to Committee of the Whole.

General Order, No. 400, dated Executive Mansion, March 14th, says that in order to supply the force required by the Navy, and to provide an adequate reserve force for all contingencies, in addition to the 500,000 called for in February, a call is hereby made and ordered, for 200,000 for military service in proportional quota for different wards in towns, election districts or counties, to be made through the Provost Marshal General's Bureau, and an account taken of credits and deficiencies of other quotas. The 18th day of April is designated as the time up to which the number required from each ward in all towns, etc., may be raised by volunteering. Draft to be made in each ward of said town, etc., which shall not have filled the quotas assigned it within the time designated for the number of regiments to fill their quota. The Government bounties that are now paid shall continue until the first of April; after that time two hundred dollars bounty only shall be paid, provided by the Act approved July 22d, 1861.

Fortress Monroe, March 15.—The Richmond Examiner, of the 14th, says that a slow fire was kept up on Charleston.

New York, March 15.—All the Washington specials agree that the gold bill will pass the House to-day. The Herald says that the bill may be amended so as to authorize the Secretary to issue certificates, payable in gold, to be used in payment of Custom-house duties.

The World's special Washington dispatch says that it is understood that Gen. Freeman will be assigned to the Department of South Carolina, and that Gen. Gilmore is to have active command in the field.

DUTIES OF THE PRESS.—A correspondent and of baleful influence, that the press, while denouncing the prize fight, prints the full details. So it prints robberies and murders, and denounces the crime. So it records the unchristian controversies of christian men and women, and disapproves of them. So it tells you the mercury was down below zero yesterday morning, yet shrugs its shoulders at it. When will all good people be intelligent enough to comprehend and yield the fact that the newspaper is but a "map of busy life"—having its shadows as well as its lights—its crime as well as its beneficence—its shames and its glories; and that the paper that does not do this, however pleasant and useful in Sunday schools, however valuable as a moral or religious agent, is no newspaper, and must even be limited in range and influence—limited, indeed, to those who read it.—Springfield Republican.

SALUTARIS!
SALUTARIS!
SALUTARIS!

"Non est vivere sed valere vita."

Man is mortal, because no human being is physically perfect. Could a man with a frame perfectly complete, and free from the germs of organic disease be found, that man might live forever. To prolong life two things are requisite: First, that the physical organization be sound; second, that the laws of Nature be observed and the tone of the vital functions maintained. A constitution originally unsound and affected by organic disease, cannot be restored to pristine strength and perfect health, by any medicine. But where no organic disease exists, a genuine Tonic, which repairs the waste of the vital functions, is of inestimable worth. The SALUTARIS BITTERS is such a Tonic. It is a Tonic—not a mere stimulant. The difference is momentous, almost inappreciable. A stimulant supplies temporary strength, followed by speedy reaction, which leaves the unfortunate subject in a worse state than that in which it found him. By the use of ordinary stimulants, the sick man may be exalted for an hour or a day, to a delusive strength and evanescent exhilaration. All consciousness of weakness, depression and pain, vanishes for the moment, but only to be succeeded by a more complete and hopeless prostration. The use of stimulants, begets the absolute necessity of their continued use, until the wretched victim is reduced to a condition so forlorn that stimulants cease to stimulate! Then all is over, and death is inevitable. But with a Tonic, the case is far otherwise. A Tonic produces not a temporary exhilaration, but a permanent increase of strength and vitality. A genuine Tonic, strengthens the vital functions, and is followed by no reaction. It is confidently claimed for the SALUTARIS BITTERS, that it is a genuine Tonic, and not a stimulant, and that in all cases of nervous debility, of torpor, or weakness of the Digestion, of incipient Dyspepsia, of sluggishness of the Circulation, of depression of the Vital Functions, it is the best remedy ever discovered. SALUTARIS will not raise the dead; it will not remove organic disease; it will not cure the incurable; it is no panacea; but in all cases where a Tonic is required, it is the BEST TONIC now known. SALUTARIS has no powerful regulative effect on the bowels; if properly used, it is a certain cure for all curable cases of constiveness. Where a clearly defined tendency to constiveness is developed, its regular use is an undoubted remedy. SALUTARIS is an invaluable medicine for female complaints. It has all the beneficial effects of the best Holland gin, without being liable to the objections against that beverage. When taken by females for this specific purpose, it should be mixed with water in equal quantities. SALUTARIS is an almost instantaneous remedy for heart-burn, and the disagreeable symptoms that sometimes follow an excessive meal. When employed in such cases it should be taken pure. For ages, the great problem proposed by medical men has been to discover a Tonic which should be free from the reactionary properties of those stimulants which are in everyday use. In the SALUTARIS BITTERS this desideratum has at length been found. It furnishes a healthy, and not a morbid stimulus. The happy effects which it produces are permanent, not temporary; real, not apparent. Its tendency is to assist Nature, not to outrange her. Where it can effect no cure, it can assuredly do no harm. Its regular and continued use will cure all diseases of the Liver, where they are curable, and alleviate them where they cannot be cured. As an appetizer, SALUTARIS is unequalled. Directions for use accompany every bottle.

MEDICAL CERTIFICATE:

Messrs. BYRNE & CASTREE.—We have carefully examined the recipe by which your SALUTARIS BITTERS is prepared, and take pleasure in stating that it is a healthy, agreeable Tonic and Aperient—a promoter of appetite, aids digestion, invaluable to those afflicted with dyspepsia. It contains nothing but those agents which time and experience have proved to act beneficially upon the human system, when a gentle Tonic is required.
